MAN IS SLAIN AT BODCAW

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

MIL RENO yesterday flayed with angry words the agricultural policies of the Democratic party and declared Secretary Wallace to be "in perfect harmony with the political shysters and half-baked Brain Trusters."

Chicot Co's Farm Earns Good Profit, Comptroller Says

Combined Penal and Poor Farm Model for Other Counties

CHICOT HAS CASH

Many Other Counties of Arkansas Are Facing Real Crisis

LITTLE ROCK—Chicot county, with no indebtedness of any kind and with a substantial cash balance in the treasury, is believed to be in a better financial condition than any other county in Arkansas, it was said in an audit report filed at the state comptroller's office Thursday.

Reports on Arkansas and Pope counties showed that they have a large bonded indebtedness and a floating debt of $57,028 and $24,530 respectively.

The Chicot county audit, covering the calendar years 1932 and 1933, showed that Collector Calmes Merritt owed the state $123.80 on his 1932 tax settlement as the result of bookkeeping errors. The account was adjusted as soon as the error was found, the report said.

Records of other county officials were found to be in good condition and the treasurer's records December 31, 1933, showed the following balance:

County general fund $17,131.02
County farm fund 4,475.50
General fund 13,308.50

The above figures represented the condition of the county after a charge-off had been made because of a shortage in accounts of H. T. Rucks, treasurer, which was reported in a previous audit.

Profits From Farm

"Chicot county operates a county farm as a combination penal institution and poor farm," the report said. "During 1933, the cash revenue from this farm amounted to $8,359.04. The expense of operation for the same period was $6,773.10. At the time the audit was made 98 bales of cotton were on hand, as well as a large quantity of supplies produced on the farm. From this it may be seen that the expense of taking care of the paupers and county prisoners is more than offset by the income produced on the county farm. This is an unusual condition, as in most counties these represent a major part of the expenses that must be paid from the county five-year tax."

Floating Debt Burdensome

In transmitting audit reports on Arkansas and Pope counties to the comptroller, J. B. Sims, chief of county accountants, called attention to the bonded and floating debts of the counties and said the floating debt can be retired only by reducing current expenditures. He suggested that a substantial curtailment should be made in all fixed expenses and that contractual expenses be eliminated or held to a minimum until the counties are placed on a cash basis.

Arkansas county's debt at the beginning of last year was listed as follows:

Funding bonds $75,000
DeWitt courthouse bonds 58,000
Outstanding warrants 57,028

Included in the outstanding warrants are $26,000 worth issued to build the Stuttgart courthouse, which are to be retired at the rate of $5,000 a year.

The Pope county audit showed that minor errors were corrected when called to attention of officials.

"The county debt, as of December 31, 1933, was set up as follows:

Funding bonds $80,000
Courthouse and jail 146,000
County general floating debt 24,530
County highway floating debt 8,986

Interest on the funding bonds to maturity will amount to $28,875 and interest on courthouse and jail bonds to maturity will amount to $130,800, making the total debt, principal and interest, $410,182, the report said. During the past three years warrants issued have exceeded revenues by approximately $12,000.

County's Face Grave Problem

"This county is confronted, as are most of the other counties in the state, with the task of reconciling a decreasing revenue with increased expenses," Mr. Sims said in transmitting the report to State Comptroller Griffin Smith. "If a county which now has a floating debt is to retire it from current income, the will be necessary that statutory expenses be curtailed and that all non-essential contractual expenses be eliminated."

In the case of Pope county the net collected valuation decreased $1,308,298 in 1932 as compared with the preceding year and there is no reason to

Foreign Minister Hirota Makes Flat Statement to Governors

BEATEN AT GENEVA

Meanwhile, Britain Threatens Export War on Cheap Jap Goods

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota voiced a vigorous expression of Japan's new hands-off Asia policy Friday and implied that Japan proposes never again to discuss the question of peace in the Far East with the Western powers.

Addressing the annual conference of prefectural governors, he declared that Japan refuses to submit to a repetition of what happened at Geneva in 1932 "when, unfortunately, Japan's opinions concerning the maintenance of peace in eastern Asia were rejected, compelling us to secede from the League of Nations."

British-Jap Export War

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—With threats of widespread retaliations and a possible open trade war, Great Britain Thursday demanded a restriction in Japan's rapidly growing textile trade.

Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, placed before Japanese Ambassador Tsumoto Matsudaira a summary of the Japanese position and a list of proposed curtailments of Japan's exports to crown colonies and the British Isles.

Runciman warned Tokio's envoy that the British government is taking general steps to halt Japanese competition—which is said virtually to be strangling the British textile industry—unless Japan agrees to modify her program, methods and tactics.

Delays Reply

Mr. Matsudaira informed Mr. Runciman that he could not reply immediately, but had to consult his government first.

At a conference called by him, Runciman explained to Matsudaira the situation in British colonies and the homeland where lower-priced Japanese goods are sweeping the markets.

Mr. Runciman endeavored to show the seriousness of the problem, and said he hoped Japan would agree to negotiate quickly for a direct settlement.

It was reported that Britain is willing to compromise if Japan's reply is conciliatory.

A dispatch from Balboa, C. Z., last week quoted Panama merchants as saying they could not compete against Japanese goods and that tons of Japanese goods on the Balboa pier indicated that Japanese manufacturers were rapidly gaining South and Central American markets.

In a report of Harold P. Butler, director of the International Labor Conference, these statements appeared: "Japanese industry has become the most formidable competitor in the world's markets; the comparative reduction of Japanese wages in terms of other currencies is so considerable as to give a decisive advantage to Japanese industry in the international market; currency depreciation has reduced Japan's overhead and labor costs from one-half to two-thirds in relation to her main competitors."

May Act At Once
It was understood that the proposed restrictions are ready for immediate promulgation in case Japan does not agree to modify her program.

These points, it was reported, will take the form of import quotas and would necessarily apply to many nations, but would be aimed chiefly at Japan. The restrictions would not affect countries with which Britain has favored-nation treaties.

Quotas were believed applicable first to the colonies and then to the home country.

Found living in an abandoned house near the Hudson river in New York, Miles, when summoned to answer a charge of building without a permit, revealed he was a second cousin of " Honest Abe."

JACKSON, Miss.—(AP)—The 22nd quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Friday debated proposals to limit the terms of bishops.

House Completes Exchange Control

War Department to Ask Bids on 110 New Fighting Planes

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The house worked a complete disposition of the stock market regulation bill Friday before sending it to the senate.

Republican Leader Snell opposed the bill as going too far.

President Roosevelt meanwhile received a report from the Darrow committee that looked into anti-trust and price aspects of the NRA. It is expected that the report will be unfavorable, but publication has been deferred.

Stock Regulation Certain
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The house met the test of the stock exchange control bill Thursday by approving many of its most criticized provisions and evincing a firm determination to keep the measure free from all weakening amendments.

At the end of the session it had read and approved more than half of the measure, beaten off all changes not acceptable to the committee, and had but one more major controversy to dispose of before passing the bill.

Furries of debate brought a renewal of criticism of "the men sur-

Former Secretary Woodin, of Roosevelt Cabinet, Dies at 66

Republican Who Supported Both Smith and Roosevelt, and Entered Democratic Cabinet, Victim of Throat Infection

NEW YORK.—(AP)—William H. Woodin, whose warm friendship for Franklin D. Roosevelt led him to take the helm of the Treasury in one of the nation's gravest crises, died Thursday night from a throat infection. He would have been 66 late this month.

For seven months, through the strains of the national bank holiday and the unprecedented monetary experiments of the New Deal, Mr. Woodin held to his post until last November when he first obtained a leave of absence and, finally, on January 1, resigned as Secretary of the Treasury.

Close to President
The president, whom he called "Boss" and by whom he was in turn addressed as "Will," several times acknowledged the value of the counsel and administrative ability of Mr. Woodin. Criticism that Mr. Woodin was out of sympathy with what were popularly called "inflationary policies" of the president and that the appearance of his name in the J. P. Morgan inquiry was embarrassing—cropped out occasionally, but the friendship of the president and secretary was reaffirmed publicly.

Physicians gave the cause of death as nephritis and uremia, following upon an infection of the throat and neck.

Mr. Woodin, whose hobby for compensating success as an industrialist long before he was known in public life. Although listed as a Republican, he contributed to the campaign of Alfred E. Smith in 1928 and did the same for Mr. Roosevelt in 1932.

Dillinger Linked With Bank Holdup

Fingerprints Being Examined Following Raid at Fostoria, Ohio

FOSTORIA, Ohio.—(AP)—Captain Jack Kessler of the Fostoria police said Friday there was a possibility that John Dillinger or his gangsters were responsible for the bloody $17,000 robbery of the First National bank Thursday in which five persons were wounded, two seriously.

Tell-tale fingerprints were found on the money-drawers, and they are being examined by identification experts.

Police Chief Frank Culp, shot in the lungs by the robbers' murderous fire, was the most seriously wounded in the bank robbery. William Fessal, 67, farmer, shot through the chest by a stray bullet, was in critical condition.

Three Die, 6 Ill of Tragic Poisoning

Father Mistakes It for Quinine, Proves to Be Rat Poison

SAPULPA, Okla.—(AP)—Doses of what Chester Barrett thought was quinine proved to be poison and killed three members of his family and made six others including himself seriously ill.

Barrett, an unemployed man, Thursday night gave seven of his eight children, his wife and himself doses from an old receptacle that at one time contained medicine.

Officers said they learned that all of some poison which Barrett bought two years ago to kill rats was unused, and when the original container broke the powder was transferred to a quinine box.

Officers said Barrett gave what he thought was quinine to the children to ward off fever. Three of the children, Betty Jo, 6, Mary Kathryn, 3, and Wanda, 2, died.

Although Barrett will be questioned when he recovers, County Attorney Christian said Friday he believed the case to be a tragic accident.

Jewell Daniell Is Killed by Officer on Robbery Trail

Constable Cebe Goodwin Fires in Struggle for Revolver

3 BULLETS HIT HIM

Daniell Dies at B. E. Brockman Home—Constable Is Exonerated

Resisting arrest on robbery charges, Jewell Daniell, 27, was shot and killed by Constable Cebe Goodwin at the B. E. Brockman home, two miles south of Bodcaw, at 11 o'clock Thursday night.

Three bullets entered Daniell's body as he fled through a rear door. He fell on the doorsteps and died a few minutes later without making a statement.

Shooting at close range, fire from the officer's gun ignited Daniell's clothing, witnesses said.

Wanted for Robbery
Daniell was wanted for theft of a watch and gun, alleged to have been stolen recently in the Bodcaw community. He had gone to the Brockman home to spend the night. When the officer approached and demanded Daniell to surrender the two quarreled and fought on the kitchen floor.

Daniell wrestled a pistol from Goodwin and attempted to escape. As he fled through a rear door, Goodwin pulled a second pistol and fired five times, three bullets taking effect.

Sheriff Arlice Pittman, a deputy of Nevada county, and Luther May, Bodcaw Justice of the Peace, investigated. Constable Goodwin was exonerated on a plea of self defense.

Witnesses of the shooting were: Claude Daniell, Mrs. E. E. Brockman, brother and sister of the slain man, Sid Lewis, Mrs. Brockman's son and daughter, "Back" and Maxine Brockman. Mrs. Brockman's husband was in Texarkana at the time of the shooting.

Lived in Texarkana
For the past few weeks Daniell had made his home in Texarkana where he has a wife and baby son, Edward. He was well known in the Bodcaw community, making frequent visits there.

Besides his wife and small son, Daniell is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Daniell of Texarkana; one brother, Claude of Bodcaw; four sisters, Mrs. Ruth Littlejohn of Texarkana; Mrs. Emma Boswell, Bodcaw; Mrs. B. E. Brockman, Bodcaw, and Mrs. Lois Wright, Texarkana.

Funeral and burial services were to be held Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Cornith cemetery, five miles south of Bodcaw.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

First Lady Adds to Fame as Militant Crusader . . . Denials and Tugwell Take Center of Capital Stage . . . A Little CWA Drama Starts and Ends With Battle.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Girls who cover Mrs. Roosevelt's press conferences brag that she becomes more radical and aggressive as the president seems more conservative and conciliatory.

They cite her spirited replies to Senator Schull, Dr. Wirt, and critics of her pet, the National Industrial Conference Board, her implied attack on milk distributors who profiteer at the expense of farmers and city families, and her speech to the sometimes militant D. A. R., urging it to work for peace.

The newspaperwomen are proud of her, insisting that she has suffered more personal attacks than the president himself and that perhaps there won't be so many after her worsting of Senator Schull, who said her philanthropic furniture factory at Hyde Park was a profiteering enterprise.

The First Lady takes a vigorous, outspoken interest in social problems and sometimes can afford to be more informal and frank than her husband. In her press conference "off the record" comments, her humanitarian slant is even more obvious than his.

Two Great Young Minds
"The Planless Roosevelt Revolution," by Lawrence Dennis, in the American Mercury, and Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell's speech, "The Return to Democracy."

I met Dennis in Senator Cutting's office—a tall, dark, handsome, youngish ex-diplomat and ex-Wall Street banker equipped with a realistic, objective viewpoint.

His articles cite conflicts in the New Deal and insist it must have a definite, planned program. Personally, he believes the country is headed for Fascism—since it is bound to head in some direction.

Tugwell says hitherto Fascism can be avoided by reforms in the present system. He thinks the American people are too individualistic, too defiant of regimentation, to enter anything of the sort.

To which the Dennis answer was that human nature, under given compulsion, is the same on any continent. Tugwell thinks the depression is temporary; Dennis doesn't. But Tugwell isn't any too optimistic.

He remarked at a dinner table the other night that he didn't think the country yet really believed that every good American had a right to a job or even that we ought to abolish poverty. Anyway, those are random thoughts culled from a couple of brilliant, divergent minds which have inspired lots of heavy thinking here.

Just Natural Battles

Little dramas of government life: A boy and girl were married, got to quarreling and separated. The boy lost his job, so both were looking for work. CWA brought them together, unwittingly in the office of a library cataloging friend. Reconciliation? No, they started fighting again and have to be quelled so the rest of the force could work. Now they're both job-hunting again. . . . A brilliant young western congressman would have made a better record this session but for one weakness. Blazing with a yen for social justice, he becomes so overwrought over his favorite issues that he starts drinking to hold his nerves together—and takes too much.

An Interior Department girl was assigned to a night job. She had just married a man who works days and tried to have something done about it. The official advised: "The shifts are rotated every 30 days, so the husband will have the benefit of his wife's society at least one month out of three."

Several years ago, a man who is now a "little cabinet" member, engaged in a corporate reorganization in his home state, discovered a crooked official in the company and had him fired. Last summer he helped the same man get a good emergency agency job here. Now the second man is engaged in an undercover campaign of slander against the "little cabinet" fellow. . . . A girl secretary, in NRA smashed her automobile into another car and was convinced of reckless driving. She was asked to resign, with the explanation that she had been in a "similar" affair before it seems she was in a party which once invaded a speakeasy with the alleged representation of one of the men that was General Johnson. A newspaper report said Johnson himself had raucously demanded entrance—and Johnson obtained an abject apology. . . . Taxi drivers are still complaining to passengers about the D. A. R. convention. They say the members often piled into their cabs six at a time and insisted on driving all over town for 20 cents.

(Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

The mother of a large family of boys writes me that she is almost out of her mind with their quarreling and arguing.

If she had written that they never poked each other on the nose, called each other names, or raised general Cain, I would have decided they were sick.

As it is I can only congratulate her on her food. They have good red blood and they wouldn't feel their oats. Boys usually quarrel, especially where there are a baker's half dozen or so. Men in the mass revert to the savage. Boys in the mass do too.

Soothing Young Savages
She says they are good workers and help her a great deal. This shows she is more than a good cook—she's a miracle.

Thus doubly recommended I take the responsibility seriously when she asks my advice. How can we help her to soothe these young savages?

When boys rebel against adult rule what do other people do? In camps, and clubs, and schools? Or even when they don't rebel.

They adopt the student government method, or the honor system. To date nothing more successful has been found. It is still going strong and seems to satisfy everybody.

I see no reason why it would not work in the home too.

This mother could call a meeting and put it to vote. She might just as well lay her cards on the table and tell them the truth—that since they won't pay attention to her they will have to govern themselves.

Each week there could be one governor, or mother, and one lieutenant elected, or they could take turns.

A Plan for Order
They could draw up a simple set of laws, budgeting work, and providing punishment for fights, profanity or slacking. Dishonesty and any infraction of the moral code could be handled as well.

Each would have to promise his loyal support to the incumbent in office. A command to wash all the dishes for three days as retribution for a black eye, or to get up and get breakfast for a week to pay for a fib, would mean just that.

I am serious. If not this system exactly, then something like it, I believe would work wonders.

The mother would be the court of last appeal, but she would have to yield the scepter of what authority she has left to each temporary monitor as a proxy for her.

Then she could put on her hat and go to call on the friends she hasn't seen for ten or fifteen years. She would have time to read a book, or take a nap, and gather up the frayed threads of her nerves.

If the plan fails, she still has her hat. They would get tired of their own cooking after a day or two. If you can't reach a man through his honor, there's still his stomach. Here lies victory.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

DONNA GARRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are trapeze performers with Remy's circus.

CON. DAVID, the animal trainer, is in love with Donna who regards him merely as a friend. Madeline, in love with Con, has been flirting with NED TRAFFORD, her chauffeur.

When Madeline's grandfather, AVON SIDDAL, asks her to spend the week-end on his farm, she persuades Donna to take her place. Donna is much attracted by BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin.

Two weeks later Donna falls from the trapeze and is taken to a hospital, badly injured. Madeline sends word to Bill that "Madeline" is ill. She leaves a note telling Donna to continue the impersonation until she is well. Then Madeline goes on with the circus.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

BILL SIDDAL was not conscious that he had been praying all that long, bitter night as he sat in the shabby, ill-ventilated day coach in a train that seemed to be drawn by slow-footed oxen instead of a steam engine.

Madeline's letter had been not only a shock but an eye-opener. Until he had learned of the accident he had not analyzed his feeling toward the girl he believed to be his cousin. Her visit had been a never-to-be-forgotten event in his colorless life. Her charm and beauty had made an indelible impression, but he had not realized that he loved her until he read the letter telling him of her danger. How much danger he dared not think about.

Wishing to spare his grand-uncle suspense and worry, he made an excuse to get away, intending to keep all knowledge of the accident from the old man. If possible, until Madeline was on the road to recovery.

Haggard-eyed, unshaven, and wearing his work clothes with stout cowhide boots, he did not present a very prosperous appearance when he strode into the hospital that bright morning at eight o'clock.

"Is she alive?" the young man demanded across the desk.

Assured that she was, Bill sank wearily into a chair and for several seconds seemed unable to speak.

"But she can't be moved at present," Dr. Cotton said. "Not for two weeks at least."

"I—I may see her?"

"Surely, Miss Wyatt—take Mr. Siddal to 35."

Donna was asleep when they stepped into the hushed chamber. Bill crossed to the bedside and looked down at the white, pinched face. It required a tremendous effort not to bend down and kiss that face, not to murmur the love that surged through him like a tumultuous torrent.

"You must go now," the nurse said when he had stood motionless for several minutes.

"She—is going to live?"

"Of course. But she must not have any excitement."

Below Dr. Cotton was waiting for him. "Miss Gabriel—er—the other sister said that you—it's customary to pay hospital bills in advance, but the circumstances were such that—"

"When you're better I'm going to take you to the farm with me," Bill said.

book from his pocket, asked the amount and filled in a blank.

IN all his 26 years Bill had never known a sick day. Possibly it was his own virile health that had prompted him to take up the study of medicine. All that he had learned about it was forgotten now in the flood of relief that swept over him. Madeline would recover! He did not question Dr. Cotton's diagnosis, nor his statement that she could not be moved for two weeks. If she had to stay, then Bill would stay.

Not until hours later did the fact of their close relationship color his dreams of their future together. Then, like a specter, that fact arose to haunt him. Even if Madeline loved him could they face a community that would look upon their marriage as a sin? So long as Grandfather Siddal lived, Bill knew he was tied to the farm and the environs of Lebanon.

At noon Donna awakened and was informed that her "cousin" had come.

"Cousin? I—I haven't any cousin."

"Mr. Siddal, dear. You were asleep when he arrived. He said he would be back this afternoon."

Vaguely Donna understood the words. But she was still too fogged to understand the real meaning of the statement. The knowledge that Bill Siddal came enough to come to see her caused a warm glow in her heart and brought tears to her eyes.

"My—my sister?" she managed. "That's just too bad, but she had to go on with the circus."

"Yes, of course, she had to go on," Donna fought to smile bravely.

"I understand," Bill said gravely. "I will take care of Miss Siddal's expenses." He drew a check back to the circus as soon as possible. Don't think me vain, but the act needs me."

"The act will have to do without you for a long time. You've had a close shave. Dr. Cotton told me that at first he was certain you had a concussion. That could have been very serious."

"Nothing matters so long as my back is all right. It is, isn't it? They didn't tell me it was, just to bolster my courage?" Panic seized her.

"Your back is perfectly all right," he reassured her. "But I mustn't tire you. When you are stronger you can tell me how it happened."

"I DON'T know myself unless Tra—" She paused abruptly, unwilling to cast suspicion, when she was uncertain, upon one of her profession. "How is Grandfather Siddal?" she asked hastily.

"I didn't tell him you were hurt. Didn't want to worry him if I could help it, but since I'll have to stay longer than I expected I'll let him know now."

"Why should he worry about me?" she asked wonderingly.

"Why not, Madeline? You're the apple of his eye."

Madeline! She had forgotten! He had come because he thought she was his cousin. Even with death so close, Madeline had kept up the masquerade. In her great joy at seeing him Donna had forgotten Bill did not know her real identity. He had come to her as a duty and she had thought—

Her icy fingers wriggled in his grasp. Bill loosened them and drew back, intuitively feeling that something was wrong. Yet what had he said to offend her? Certainly the mention of an old man's affection should not do that.

"I'll go now," he said, and arose. Her eyes were closed to hide the disappointment she felt.

At his feet lay Madeline's letter. He picked it up. "Yours," he said. "It hasn't been opened." He placed it on the bed near her hand. "Don't try to read until you are stronger. And don't worry about anything. I'll be here in the morning, but if there is anything you want in the meantime have them send for me. I'm at the Commercial House."

"You're very kind," she murmured, but there was nothing more than formal politeness in her tone. "I love him, I love him!" she moaned when the door closed behind him. "What shall I do?"

Her trembling fingers tore open the flap of the letter. The words Madeline had scrawled danced crazily on the sheet but she could read enough to understand what they conveyed.

"I'll do it! I will be Madeline! It's her deception, not mine. What else can I do? Oh God, if this is a sin—don't punish me! Let him learn to love me! I love him so. I can't send him out of my life. If this is wickedness, then I'm a wicked woman—but, oh, please God, give me my chance for love and happiness!"

Half hysterical, with tears rolling down her cheeks, she tore the letter to shreds, then fainted with exhaustion.

The Answer

In one life nobly lived forever lies Wisdom and meaning that should make us wise,
Prophecy and promise that light all darker things,
Hate made holy, sorrow given wings.
There is answer to all doubts that find
No vision where the Truth may be divided;
Therein love writes a fair eternal word
For hope that longs, but has not seen nor heard.
We need no more than one life's noble years
To know that love outlasts all hurt
and tears,
That in its day all needed proof is given
Of love and trust that link our earth to heaven!—Weekly Unity.

tion recently, went into federal court Wednesday and obtained an order from Judge William H. Barrett restraining the state from enforcing present assessment for taxes and from taking further action in arbitrating the assessment.

The governor also assailed action of the court in appointing H. D. Pollard, president of the railroad, receiver
when the company went into bankruptcy.

"One of his salaries ought to be stopped" the governor said "and the courts ought to see to it they don't appoint as receiver the man who broke the railroad, as an officer of the court."
"No private citizen owning and office building or a home in Atlanta and no private citizen owning a farm in Seminole or Bryan or any other rural community could come in and hold up the machinery of our government, and it is wrong for a railroad to do it, especially in the capacity of president and receiver."

The railroad's petition Wednesday pointed out that the Central of Georgia returned its properties for state tax purposes at a valuation of $17,121,- 444 and that the controller general raised this assessment to $54,100,000.
Actual taxes the receiver of the railroad would be required to pay under the increased assessment would be $1,275,000.

Judge Barrett, in Jacksonville, Fla., Thursday declined to comment on the governor's announcement.

J. R. Henry Named Convention Delegate—Albert Graves Alternate

Jim R. Henry was chosen delegate, and Albert Graves alternate delegate, to the Memphis district conference of Rotary International this month, at the Friday noon meeting of Hope Rotary club in Hotel Barlow.

The luncheon program, in charge of Nick Jewell, presented three club members in brief autobiographical sketches, the Rev. Thomas Brewster,
Coach T. Jones, and County Agent
Frank Stanley.

The Rev. Mr. Brewster, born in Newcastle, England, told of his early education there, and his removal to Canada as a missionary churchman—

in a land of rough-and-tumble lumberjacks, where a preacher was neither "Reverend" nor "Doctor," but called a "Sky Pilot."

From Canada, in 1915 he went to Chicago, thence to Louisville, Ky., for a seminary course, and in 1919 was graduated and ordained in the Presbyterian church. His first pastorate was at Glasgow, Ky., then at Elizabethtown and Badstown, coming from the last-named Kentucky city to Hope as pastor of First Presbyterian church.

Coach Jones told of his graduation from Pine Bluff High School and Ouachita college, and his entry on his first full-fledged job as coach of Hope High School.

County Agent Stanley, a native of Rolla, Okla., moved to Altus, in the same state, as a child, then went to school at Ozark, Ark. He recalled that, being a country boy, he enrolled with the country crowd in a school-fight with the town gang—"and so I had to move my schooling to Russellville." At that place he finished high school and Russellville Tech.

He went back to Altus, Okla., as superintendent of schools, then took time out for a degree at Iowa State college, Ames, Iowa. After service with Swift & Co., packers, he went to a Tennessee mission school as superintendent, but returned to this section as Smith-Hughes instructor and superintendent at Fouke, Ark. He came to Hope as Hempstead county farm agent last year.

Trick Brings Liberty to Three Ohio Convicts

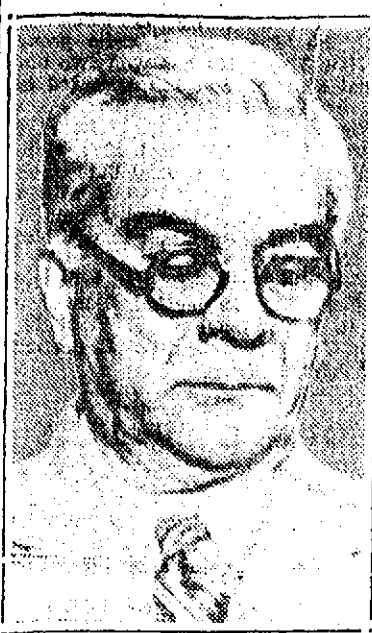

A ruse gained freedom for three convicts at Ohio state prison, Columbus, despite heavy guard maintained to balk a John Dillinger rescue foray. Ascending the wall on pretense of repairing the searchlight, upper left, they overpowered Guard Frank Alkire, shown holding a gun similar to the one which they took from him, and slid down a cable at the northwest tower, upper right, then fleeing in an auto held in wait nearby. The three fugitives are shown below, left to right: Arthur Koontz, 33, auto thief; Rufus Deeds, 28, robber; and Martin Schmidt, 35, bank robber.

Extortion Plot Called a Prank

Arrested for writing threatening letters to Mrs. Sarah H. Joslyn, above, richest woman in Nebraska, demanding $1000, two Creighton University students, Edward Mullitt, 18, Omaha, left below, and John E. Flanagan, 17, New York, right, declare it was all a prank. They were trapped with a dummy package.

Warrant Brands Him Murderer

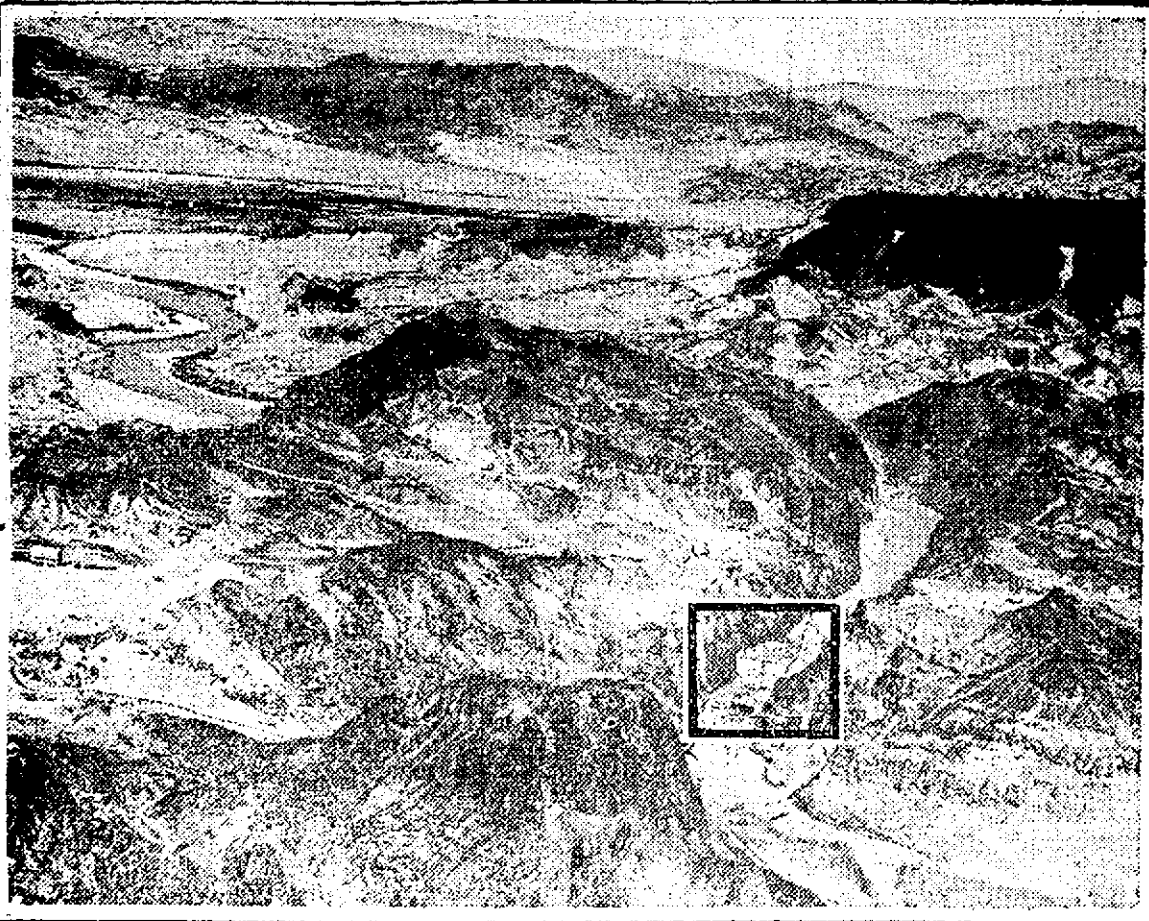

The long arm of the law reached from Havana to New York when a warrant was issued for the arrest of Gerardo Machado, deposed President of Cuba, for extradition to his own country to face charges of murder and other crimes. The noted exile, shown in a recent photo, was being sought by New York police.

Windows Shattered in Silver Shirt Bookshop

Animosity against Silver Shirts flared into violence in Los Angeles, strongest citadel of the American "Fascist" organization when, on two successive nights, bricks were hurled through windows of this bookshop, where Silver Shirt and anti-Communist literature is sold. The proprietor proudly painted edges of the shattered glass and added legends, underscoring his belief that Communists were responsible.

Boulder Dam to Form Greatest Artificial Lake

The greatest artificial body of water in the world will be formed when work is completed on Boulder Dam and waters of the Colorado river are impounded in the area shown upper left in this picture. It will cover 12,647 acres, for which the government will pay $750,000. This view from the air shows the nature of the country, with its towering peaks and awesome depths, around Uncle Sam's giant project, the dam being indicated by the square.

Jail Bars Frame Hamilton

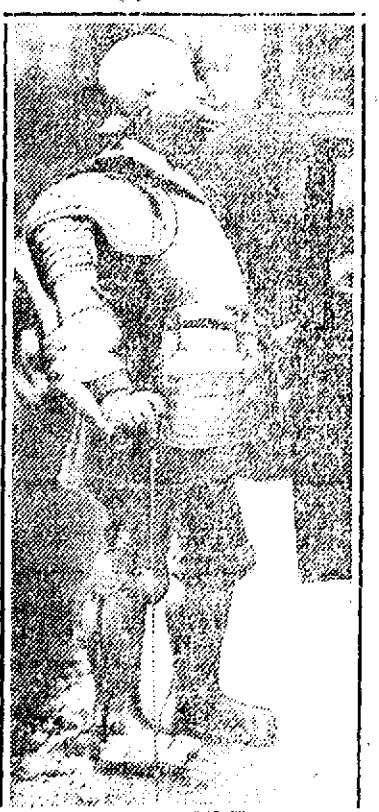

At the end of his criminal career, Raymond Hamilton, above, and his pal, Ted Brooks, are seen here sitting on a bench in the Sherman jail a few moments after their capture following a spectacular chase on the Dallas-Sherman rd. The captors of the notorious fugitive are standing behind, from left to right: Deputies Roy McDaniel and Collier Yerry, Sheriff J. B. Davis of Sherman, and Dr. John T. Vahl, arms instructor of the Sherman police force. Loot from the Lewisville bank they had just robbed was taken from Hamilton and Brooks.

Governor Faces Plot Charges

Charged with exacting political contributions from persons forced to ask for federal relief work, Gov. William Langer of North Dakota, indicted on two conspiracy charges with eight of his aides, is shown here as he left the Fargo federal building, after pleading not guilty on his arraignment.

Knight Work

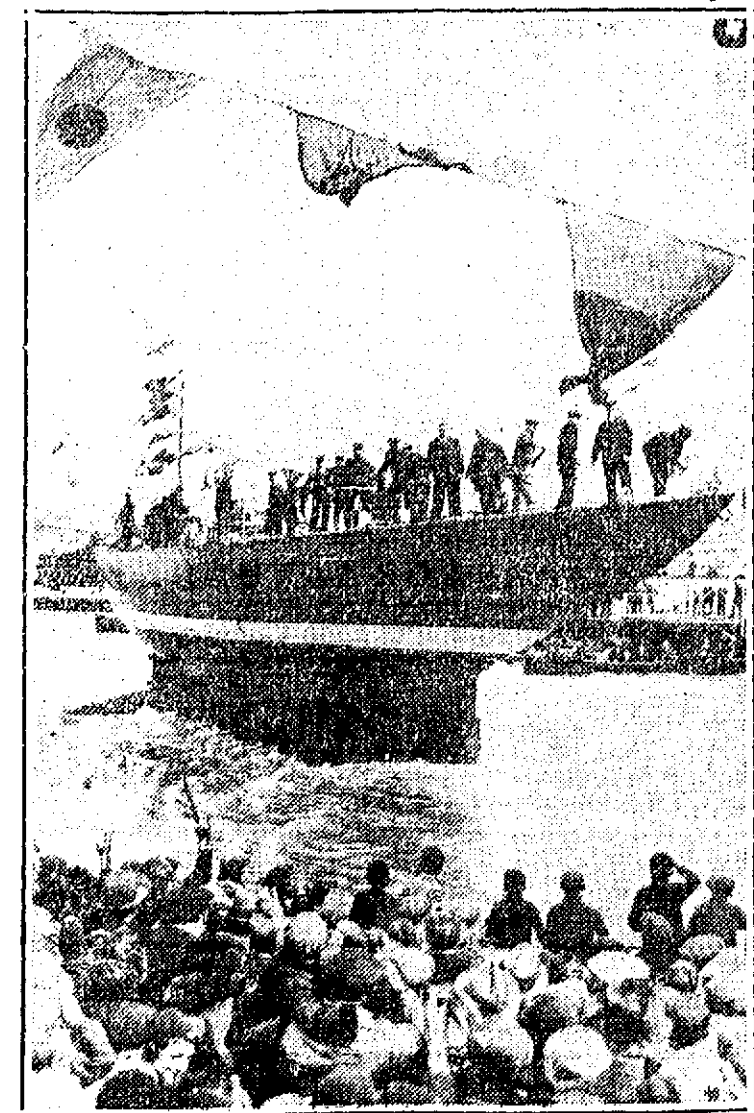

It was a right canny idea that the car-parking attendant in Kent, England, had in looking himself up in a suit of armor. He's making himself bump-proof, he doesn't have to worry about keeping the peace in his pants, you know. You see him here on duty.

All-America Aviatrix

Ladies first? Well, when petite Laura Ingalls finished her 17,000-mile solo flight around South America by landing her plane in New York, as shown above, she became the FIRST American woman to fly her own plane across the Andes, the FIRST woman to fly 17,000 miles alone and the FIRST pilot to make a solo flight around South America. And through the entire 23-country itinerary, (see map), the 120-pound Brooklynite didn't "lose a thing—not even a garter".

British Choice to Lift America's Cup

Many a lusty cheer went up from a pier that was crowded with spectators when T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour, England's 15th challenger for the historic America's Cup, took the waters, as shown here, at Portsmouth, England. The yacht, a successor to Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock, will attempt to wrest the coveted trophy off Newport, R. I., in September.

"MOST GLORIFIED BLOND"

A lovely Norwegian lass who has shouldered her way to the top among America's glorified beauties is Ethel Thorsen (above). She has been chosen the most beautiful blond in the Ziegfeld Follies.

Let This Be a Warning, Girls

Two black eyes here preach an eloquent sermon to girls who succumb to the lure of fascinating strangers. A hitchhike "honeymoon" without benefit of clergy ended for Vivian Mason, 19, in a New Orleans hospital, after she had been beaten by Gaylord Rice because she would not aid him in a robbery. She fled with Rice from Wall Lake, Mich., where her father is an evangelist. Rice, who has a wife in Memphis, pleaded guilty to Mann act violation.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Your Mirror Will Tell You If Your Posture's Correct

All of this modern talk about correct posture may seem a little confusing to the woman who cannot go to an expert to have an analysis made of her figure. She, after all, has to rely pretty much on her own judgment and, if she has no rules and no chart to guide her, she may be laboring under the false impression that her posture is perfect when, as a matter of fact, it is quite incorrect.

A full-length mirror is really your most reliable consultant. And, if you happen to be lucky enough to own one of those luxurious full-length, triple mirrors, there's no reason in the world why you can't see for yourself just how you look to others. Be honest with yourself. If your hips protrude about it and then do something about it. If shoulders slope in unbecomingly, causing little hollows around your collar bone, that to should be corrected.

The ideal figure is the one that possesses an almost straight backbone. The depression in the center of your back should be ever so slight—really a small curve and not a hollow at all. The shoulders should be held back and the chest should be raised always. Your head must be up, of course, but keep the chin in—never down—in and up! Then you'll never have to worry about acquiring a "dowager's hump" on the back of your neck.

Get Rid of That Hollow in Your Back This Way

A five-minute exercise, practiced twice a day, will eliminate the hollow in many women's back. And, once that posture defect has been corrected, she is well on the road to a more perfect figure.

Lie on your back flat on the floor, arms at sides. Bend knees and let the weight of your legs rest on the bottoms of your feet. Putting the weight on the middle of the backbones and not on the feet, raise the last two links of the spinal column off the floor and do not allow them to touch it again. As you do that, you will notice that the hollow in your backbones disappears except those last two vertebrae touches the floor. Hold the position, trying to dig your backbones further into the floor. Relax and repeat the exercise until it is no longer difficult for you to straighten the spine. Notice how the stomach muscles are drawn up and in when the hollow is removed from the center of the back.

When you get up, try to stand exactly in the position in which you were lying on the floor—stomach drawn in, backbones straight with the last two vertebrae tucked under. It will be hard first, but with practice the correct posture will seem perfectly natural to you.

Style of Collare Should Depend On Your Type

"How shall I fix my hair so that I won't look like everyone else?" One out of every five letters that come to my desk asks that question.

First of all, no smart woman should consider sacrificing a tasteful and flattering collar for one that is so "different" as to appear grotesque or conspicuous. Any girl likes to feel that her hair is a trifle out of the ordinary but she must stay within the realm of the dictates of fashion and consider her hair dress from a practical viewpoint.

Let's consider what can happen to the average woman with average hair. There's no use in telling her to dress it in a fashion meant to be worn only in hair style shows. Aside from the fact that such coiffure creations are too "different" to be flattering to anyone but an exotic stage beauty, they are, generally speaking, highly impractical. They won't withstand a hat nor a strong wind nor anything else for that matter. So the simple hair styles are best for anyone who leads an active life—at least for daytime in other periods of history and in anyway.

Most women look prettier when their hair is waved softly about their faces. However, if you are lucky enough to have classic features that need no softening touches, wear your hair straight and be glad that you don't have to bother getting it waved. But, such fortunate types are few and far between. For the average, wide, loose waves, brushed back smoothly from the face are easy to keep in place and usually are most becoming.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson Jesus Acclaimed as King

Text: Matt. 21:1-16
The International Union Sunday School Lesson for May 6.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

The triumphal entry into Jerusalem has been celebrated in Palm Sunday. Our thoughts have been given to the study of this lesson with the preparation of the Lenten season.

The description of the entry of Jesus into Jerusalem seems to have a unique place in the Gospel story. We find Jesus on different occasions seeking refuge from the opposition and the persecuting spirit of the multitude.

We find him, for the most part, avoiding the thronged public places, giving his greatest teachings to individuals and to small groups as he wanders through the fields, as he sits by the side of the well, or as he reclines in some home where he has been invited to supper.

In many of his public appearances we see him confronted with opposition and denunciation.

A few days after the events described in our lesson, we see him in every different procession, to the Cross, being spat upon and reviled as he walks under its burden.

How does it come in our lesson, therefore, that we have this contrasted incident? Here, as he rides toward Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives, the people cast their garments in the way and throw palm branches in his path, crying, "Hosanna, blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord."

We can hardly account for the changing scenes, but the contrast is one that has been by no means lacking an active life—at least for daytime in other periods of history and in

It is not so easy to attain this as would appear on the surface. It is, in fact, the hardest way of life, and it demands life's sternest and supremest discipline. Fortunately we have the discipline and the power of Christ to help us attain to spiritual discernment.

The man who is truly of the Christian spirit brings to life a sort of touchstone, in which the spirit of Christ in others is revealed. He can see in the prophet who is scorned and denounced and persecuted the true man of God, if God indeed be there.
